Accomplishments

During his legal career, one of the more significant accomplishments that John J. Bublewicz has achieved was the creation of insurance coverage for small businesses in the sexual harassment area in the case of Schmidt v. Smith. In that case, a very large insurance company, refused to defend one of Mr. Bublewicz's small business clients. After seven years of litigation culminating in argument before the New Jersey Supreme Court, a judgement of coverage was issued, awarding his client the coverage it deserved from a stubborn insurance company. This changed the existing law in New Jersey for many small businesses that needed the protection they paid for and deserved.

Unafraid of tough challenges, Mr. Bublewicz took on a large German tool manufacturer under New Jersey's Product Liability Act representing an injured client in the case of Migliaccio v. Bosch. An iron worker injured his wrist while operating a hammer drill manufactured by defendant Bosch. The drill had an arm that had been removed by the general contractor. Bosch manufacturing company finally agreed to settle the case before jury selection, paying a substantial sum to avoid a trial. More importantly, the manufacturer changed the design of the drill so that a safety toggle switch prevents its use without the arm.
